Intellinetics Announces the Release of Redactivue™.

Columbus, Ohio, April 20, 2009 – Intellinetics, a leading document and information management software organization, today announced the release of Redactivue, an advanced automated redaction platform. Today's information privacy and dissemination laws place heavy burdens on organizations responsible for documents that contain private information which cannot be shared. Manual methods to restrict specific document content from view (redaction) are resource intensive, error prone, and costly. In many cases, an organization's budget and manpower limitations make it extremely difficult to be in compliance. Intellinetics' automated redaction solution, Redactivue, provides a practical answer to these challenges.

Redactivue is an advanced automated document redaction solution with accuracy, flexibility, and power created with ease of use in mind. Redactivue is designed to enable users to quickly and efficiently design, test, and deploy intelligent redaction templates which support an unlimited number of unique content filters. Redactivue also includes a comprehensive quality review and approval workflow engine that is completely configurable by document category. As a result, unique law and policy requirements may be accommodated within one easy-to-manage framework. Available as a solution or as a service, Redactivue sets a new standard for redaction best practice technology and services.

About Intellinetics - Intellinetics has been providing cost effective, Redaction-Aware document management solutions since 1996. Intellinetics serves national and international clients from its Columbus, Ohio corporate headquarters.
